RENO IN ARIZONA SAID FAIRBANKS AND EVERYBODY JUST HOWLED

VICE- PRESIDENT'S SLIP TURNED SPEECH TO JOKE

Indianan's Few Moments Here Were Punctuated with Unfortunate Mishaps

HE WAS HAPPY, THOUGH AND DID NOT CARE

Address That Was Well-Intended but It Did Not Last Long

Though he had but a few minutes to spend in Reno Vice-President Fairbanks, who arrived here yesterday morning, made use of the opportunity to address those who had gathered to see him; but, as in most of his public addresses, he kept strictly away from politics, confining himself to those nice, polite generalities which are now expected of him.

Whatever may be the public opinion of Fairbanks there is no doubt that he was doing his best to please his hearers. He did this rather unintentionally at the very opening of his speech.

Of Arizona

"Senator Nixon and fellow citizens of Arizona," he began and a roar of laughter greeted his mistake.

"Nevada," corrected Senator Nixon. Mr. Fairbanks bowed in acknowledement of his mistake, and then, to the delight of the audience, adroitly wriggled out by declaring that Nevada had grown so much lately that he thought it embraced all the territory west of the Rocky Mountains.

Owing to the train on which he rode being three hours late many of the people who had gathered at the subway to see the distinguished visitor, left without doing so. In spite of this, however, quite a fair-sized gathering was present when he appeared at the rear end of a Pullman with a bow. Senator Nixon, in view of the shortness of time, introduced Fairbanks in the fewest of wards.

"Senator Nixon and fellow citizens of Arizona,"—he commenced, when came the laughter and the interruption by Senator Nixon.

"Fellow citizens of Nevada," he continued. "Nevada is so large that I thought for the time being it comprehended the whole of the inter-Rocky Mountain region.

Was In Reno Before

"It is becoming larger than it once was. Larger in its commerce, and larger in its esteem among the people of America.

"I recall very well the time when I was last in Reno. We were then in the midst of a great political campaign. I recall with infinite pleasure the cordiality with which your people received me here then. I am deeply touched with the manifestation of neighborly regard which I witness here this morning. I understand very well that it is not personal to me, but due to the fact that for the time being, through the partiality of the American people, I am associated with the government of the United States." (Applause.)

An an engine went by the Vice-President returned the greeting of the engineer with a shake of the arm and, "I am waiting on you."

"We are now engaged," he went on in cultivating the arts of peace; we are very neighborly in every state of our common country. There never was an hour in all of our history when there were so many people engaged in their usual vocations as there are today." [Here the Vice-President returned the greeting of people on a passing train.] "I am glad somebody is moving, even if we are not. I do not want them to move this train until I get through with you.

Great Opportunities

"We are endeavoring to build up trade and commerce. We are endeavoring to increase the opportunity of both labor and capital. We wish to go forward gaining victories in the ways of honorable peace. We have a great history back of us. A greater one awaits us if we but deal kindly toward each other, inspired by a mutual sympathetic spirit to adhere to

TAFT TAKES A FLING AT BRYAN; SAYS DEMOCRATS VOTED FOR PHILIPPINES

Metropolis of Oregon Gives Ohio's Candidate for President a Great Welcome

Secretary of War Says Roosevelt Has Not a New Platform Every Day for Breakfast

PORTLAND, Ore., Sept. 6.—Secretary of War William H. Taft and his party en route to the Philippines spent today in Portland as the guest of Theodore B. Wilcox, president of the Oregon Development League.

This is Mr. Taft's first visit to the Pacific northwest, and his stay in Portland today was made the occasion of several pleasant attentions to the distinguished statesman, and his party, including breakfast at the home of Mr. Wilcox, on his arrival here this morning, a sight-seeing tour of the city in automobiles, and a trip to the Vancouver barracks, where Secretary Taft was the guest of General Greely.

Returning to Portland, Secretary Taft was the guest of Mr. Wilcox at a luncheon at the Portland hotel, 50 of the most prominent professional and business men of Oregon also being the guests of Mr. Wilcox on this occasion.

Enthusiasm Prevails

It did not require any effort to release the enthusiasm which prevailed at the luncheon and Mr. Wilcox introduced as the first speaker of the afternoon the Hon. George H. Williams, former attorney-general under President Grant, there was a spontaneous burst of applause as the aged, but still hearty pioneer of Oregon arose to extend welcome to the secreary of war.

General Williams explained that he had known intimately 14 Presidents of the United States, and had known the father of Secretary Taft in a business and social way in his lifetime, and he hoped (bowing to Mr. Taft) to make 15.

Williams said he did not propose to deliver a political speech, but as Secretary Taft later said, "He was close thar, if he wasn't thar," and if his remarks had been made on the floor of a National convention, Mr. Taft, at least, would have been placed in nomination.

Venerable Orator

Few speakers in Oregon can hold an audience as can General Williams, who is 84 years of age and the conclusion of his remarks was greeted with prolonged hand-clapping.

Former United States Senator Gear of Oregon also spoke interestingly and promised Mr. Taft that if he should return to Oregon in another capacity, his welcome would be none the less cordial than it was today.

Mr Taft apparently was in unusually fine humor and delivered an address replete with wit and logic. His free delivery, his ease on manner captured his audience. His address was not lengthy. He said in part:

He was firmly convinced that the time had come when the country was tired of a plethora of millionaires, and of their influence upon governmental and public affairs, and that it had been demonstrated and could further be shown that the business of the nation should be run on the principle of a square deal to every one and special privileges to none, be he rich or poor. That, he said, had been the principle of the present administration and it would be with the Republican administration to come.

The People Are All Right

He expressed confidence in the ability of the people to rise up and regulate whatever abuses might exist and said that the people had done this before and would do it again, if occassion offered.

"The government and the people are in control," he said. "They are deaf to the criticism and machinations of powerful and arrogant combinations of capital and they are equally deaf to the threats that are so frelly uttered by powerful demagogues."

Tonight Secretary Taft, speaking under the auspices of the Oregon Development League, addressed over 5,000 people at the Armory. It was the first time that the vast majority of his audience had ever heard him, and his address was listened to with unusual interest and frequently interrupted by the applause of the people. His address in part, was as follows:

At the Armory

"The Administration of Theodore Roosevelt stand distinctly and sharply for four or five different issues. The first in importance, possibly, is the regulation of our interstate commerce railways by Government supervision and control.

"Now without any inviduous comparisons, the difference between President Roosevelt and other reformers, is that when he speaks, he speaks as a man with the power and the will to act, and when he speaks of the regulation of railways and their supervision so that they shall offer equal opportunity and bring about no unjust discrimination in favor of combinations of wealth, he passes that up to Congress and he thus makes good. He does not have a new platform every morning for breakfast, but when he makes an announcement of a platform he makes it with a sense of responsibility that it is to be put into legislation and into Government"

Slap at Bryan

Referring to the present attitude of William J. Bryan towards this Government's control of the Philippines, Mr. Taft declared that Mr. Bryan was instrumental in the acquisition of the Islands by this government, in that he had gone to Washington and worked with Democratic congressman to secure their vote for the approval of the treaty of Paris, through which the Philippines came into American control

He gave a minute resume of the history of the attempts to build a canal across the Isthmus, and of the progress upon the present work since it was begun by the Roosevelt administration. He said that he thought it was safe to count upon an average excavation and disposal of material in Culebra next year of 10,000,000 to 12,000,000 cubic yards.

Culebra Cut.

"It is by no means certain," he said, "that the time taken to make the excavation for the Culebra cut will mean the time necessary for the completion of the canal.

"There is the Gatun dam to be constructed, and there are the Gatun locks, and it is quite likely that the enormous structure necessary to be made for the six locks at Gatun and the enormous dom will take longer than the excavation at Culebro.

"It is quite certain that every other piece of construction to be carried on can be completed in less time, but I think it is a moderate estimate to say that the canal will be completed in seven years from the beginning of the next fiscal year. That is, our canal will be completed about the 1st of July, 1915.

Army Engineers

"It has added very much, I think, to the confidence that the country has in the honesty and sincerity of the men by whom the work is being done; that it is carried on by an army engineer. The President has infused the same vim and energy into the canal work that he does into everything of which he has control."

NO SETTLEMENT YET OF FLORENCE FIGHT

GOLDFIELD, Nev., Sep. 6.—Contrary to reports which have gone out from time to time of late, there may be no settlement of the Little Florence and the Goldfield Florence companies. Certainly no settlement has been reached thus far in regard to alleged damage to the Florence by the leasing company. Directors of the Little Florence will be here today, and in the event of settlement not being reached by the managers of both companies, the injunction suit will be argued before Judge Langan tomorrow. The Goldfield Florence company already has given notice that an injunction was wanted to restrain the Little Florence company from shipping any ore, and alleges in the complaint that the leasing company has mined ore outside of the limits of the boundary lines of its block of ground, and that other conditions of the lease have not been complied with.

SOUTHERN RAILWAY HITS BACK AT THE STATES

WASHINGTON, Sep. 6.—It was announced at the Southern railway headquarters in this city that owing to recent adverse railroad rate legislation in several Southern States and to "general conditions" the double tracking of the Southern Railway between Chattanooga and Oltewah Junction in Tennessee, north of Greensboro, N. C., has been ordered stopped pending further instructions. Contracts hade been entered into for double-track work in Tennessee aggregating $15,000,000. The money intended for the proposed improvement in Tennessee and North Carolina has been withdrawn, and will be used in operating the road.

IRRIGATIONISTS IN SACRAMENTO WILL HAVE A LIVELY TIME TODAY

JUDGE RAKER OF MODOC TO BE HEARD

An Organized Attack on Report of Resolutions Committee Seems Likely

NEVADA GIVEN BOOST BY B. F. LEETE OF RENO

Pioneer of the Sagebrush State Dilates to Delegates on His Home

SACCRAMENTO, Sept. 6.—After four days of addresses and discussion, the 15th National Irrigation Congress today took up the big work of the gathering, when the report of the committee on resolutions was submitted by its chairman, ex-Governor George C. Pardee. The only resolution objecting to administration ideas is one protesting against further enactment of legislation favoring Philippine sugar to the injury of the beet sugar industry in America.

Not an objection was made as the resolutions were read, and hearty applause followed many of them.

Lively Tomorrow

In the confusion of adjournment, it was the general understanding that the report was adopted in its entirety, but no action was recorded, owing to a parliamentary point being overlooked. This formality was left until tomorrow morning. Tomorrow's session which is to mark the close of the congress, promises lively developments.

In addition to the fight over the matter of free lumber as embodied in Judge Raker's resolution, there may also be a fight when it comes to the election of officers. It was the understanding tonight that Fred J. Keisel, known as the "Father of the Congress" would be urged for president against Frank C. Goudy, of Denver, already named by the Committee on permanent organization. Keisel has said he does not want the place, but there are many urging him to accept a nomination.

Mr. Leete's Speech

On Wednesday an extempore address was made by B. F. Leete of Nevada before the Congress that received much attention. He said:

Mr. Chairman, Ladies and Gentlemen:

I have lived in Nevada forty-five years and I have no present intention of ever living in any other State. Neada is a world in range of Latitude, climate and natural resources.

In Latitude, she stretches from the Colorado River to the south boundary of Oregon.

Her climate varies from mesi-tropical at the Colorado River to temperate northward and in her highest northern mountains is frigid.

Her products vary from cotton, coffee, tobacco, figs, grapes, peaches, lemons and oranges on the south, to ice in her northern mountains.

In the World's Exposition at Chicago, she was awarded first premium for cotton, and as that was a World's Fair, that award is one sort of evidence that Nevada produces the finest cotton in the world. If she did not take first premium on rice, sugar, tobacco, figs, grapes, peaches, oranges, lemons, barley, corn, oats, rye and wheat and all useful vegetables and forage plants it is because she did not try.

Utah lies east of Nevada and in like latitude, elevation, and climate. I challenge the State of California to present an exhibit of cereals, fruits, forage plants and vegetables equal in excellence to the display Utah makes here today.

End of Nevada's chemical and mineral resources there is none

We recognize that an undeveloped resource is now productive.

Nevada is a land of surprises. In 1859 we surprised the world by discovering the Comstock lode and opening and developing the richest silver, gold belt that had ever been discovered on this Planet. A lode that yielded in gold and silver more than Five Hundred Million Dollars. Forty-nine years ago, I visited the Comstock lode. At that time there was not a wagon trail in that camp, and as I rode along a bridle path, in the sagebrush, on the eastern slope of Mount Davidson, the first person I came to was a miner leaning on a pick. I inquired about silver ore, and pointing to a pile of ore he had dug, he said "There is the stuff, they say there is silver it in, but I don't know." The man was a moulder from Mr. Bowstead's foundry on Front Street in Sacramento. That man was the best silver miner in the United States at the time. Today we have the best miners in the United States at the time. Today we have the best miners and metallurgists in the world In Nevada when we want to do anything, we put a man at the head who believes in the thing to be done, is determined that it shall be one, then we go ahead and never fail.

Such a man you have at the head of your Board of Control, the Hon. George W. Peltier of Tuscarora, Elko County, Nevada.

We invented our own machinery and formulated our own process.

In the early sixties, the Reduction Plants on the Comstock would not touch an ore that carried less than one hundred dollars, and would not attempt reduction for less than fifty

FRANK GOLDEN IS VICTOR IN A FAMOUS SUIT

MINING CASE OF YEARS TERMINATED YESTERDAY

Action in Ejectment of Leasers Turning on Question of End Lines

The jury hearing the case of Frank Golden against Murphy and Byers, in a suit for ejectment, returned a verdict yesterday in favor of the plaintiff, thereby putting an end to litigation which will take a place in the legal history of the state, not only because of the many legal issues raised and decided, but because it once more demonstrates that there is no law which will uphold persons in the removal of ore from a lode beyond its lines, however intricate the workings by which the removal may have been accomplished.

Commenced in 1902

The suit in question has been before the courts since 1902, and has been contested through almost every phase that legal ingenuity could suggest. Briefly, its history is as follows:

The defendants, during the three years between, and including 1896-99, held a lease from the plaintiff to the Silver City mine known as the Canon. At the expiration of their term of lease, they asked for, and were refused, a renewal, and a little later went onto the adjoining ground, known as the Table Mountain mine, under a lease, and through the workings of this ground they entered the pay shoot of the Canon, and from this removed a considerable quantity of the high grade ore.

Golden became aware, by some means, of what was taking place, and caused an upraise to be run in such a manner as to enter the workings of the leasers, surprising them in their work.

The ejectment proceedings were then started, and have been before the courts at many times since with varying success to both sides.

Judge Orr heard the case during 11 days in June, when an adjournment was taken til the 3d of this month, and it was finally disposed of yesterday.

As previously stated about every point was raised that promised success to either side, and this of course made the case intensely interesting from a legal standpoint.

Points of Contention

It was contended by the defendants that the ledge, which is an enormous one, varying in width from 30 to 60 feet, apexed in the ground last under lease; that the ground embracing both claims was patented for a townsite in 1884, and that a fault was an intervening ledge containing the ground being worked by the defendants when the suit was started.

The plaintiff contended that by going to his side lines he controverted the apex issue; that the fault was a fault and not a ledge in any sense, as a crosscut run from the foot wall of the ledge contended for, would cut the fault and encounter no wall till it reached the hanging wall of the same ledge, and to the last contention of the defendants, pled the statute of limitations.

Cleverly Conducted Case

The plaintiff's case, which was conducted by Attorneys Boyd and Mack, is conceded to have been one of the most cleverly conducted cases heard in Nevada courts, and the fact that Attorney Chartz for the defendants, made such a hard fight, keeping the case before the courts so long, with the case he had, speaks volumes for his ability.

WINTER'S GAIETY IS USHERED IN BY SMART AFFAIR

TWENTIETH CENTURY CLUB ENTERTAINS

Concert and Dance Open Season—Large Crowd in Attendance

Opening with a concert and concluding with a dance the entertainment given by the Twentieth Century Club at its clubhouse last night proved as pleasent an affair as one could wish with which to usher in the winter season.

Despite the warm weather the dance floor was crowded all the evening. The attendance was by no means limited to the younger folk, the older generation entering into the spirit of the affair with as much enthusiasm as did the others.

The entire clubhouse was thrown open to the visitors and those who did not care to dance were to be found at the card tables or in the billiard rooms.

The Concert

The concert with which the evening was opened was not too long—much to the gratification of the younger people who were longing to use the dance floor. but to music lovers it was too short by a long way as the entertainment was unusually good.

Dr. Parrish, who led the program, gave piano selection. He is one of those fortunate players who does not believe in sacrificing technique for feeling. Time and again in certain brilliant passages he was offered opportunities to be carried away by a wave of emotion but cleverly held himself in check—thereby doing the better work.

Music Enjoyed

The spontaneous burst of applause resulted in an encore and he would have been playing yet if the audience had its way about the matter. Mrs. Nixon in a vocal solo, "The Slave Song," showed herself to be the possessor of a beautiful contralto voice and was also forced to give an encore.

Those who have heard the air "Love Me and the World is Mine," in the hundred and one varieties which beautiful airs have to undergo, appreciated it last night when Dr. Parrish gave it as a trombone solo. Though he is by no means the master of the latter instrument as he is of the piano, he was good enough to make that audience sit upright and listen breathlessly while he played.

Dancing and Supper

The dancing lasted till midnight. Supper was served downstairs, the various parties taking their refreshments when they pleased, there being no set time. If the succeeding entertainments of the Twentieth Century Club pass off with the swing and dash of the one last night, the members may well be proud of their efforts.

SOUGHT FOR LANDS IN THE MIDNIGHT NORTH; FOUND DEATH

ARCTIC EXPLORERS BOAT IS WRECKED

Three Members of Party Disappear; Probably Succumbed to the Cold

LEFFINGWELL OF CHICAGO MISSING

Stefanson Voyage on the Duchess of Bedford Meets With Disaster

ATHABASCA LANDING, Canada, Sep. 6.—News of the probable loss of the schooner Duchess of Bedford, the ship belonging to the Anglo-American Arctic expedition, which had hopes to find a new continent north of the Mackenzie river, was brought here by Alfred Harrison, who has been beyond the Arctic circle for two years and who came here on the steamer Midnight Sun. Mr. Harrison says

Stefanson Brings News

Ernest Stefanson, of Harvard University, after whom the expedition has been called, himself brought the news of the loss of their boat to Herschel Island. He also brought the news of the disappearance of three members of the party, and expressed the fear that they had met death in the frozen north.

The missing men are Captain Hikkelson, a Dane, Ernest Leffingwell of Chicago, and J. Marks. They left the ship in February with 60 days' provisions for the supposed land to the north and had been gone 70 days and no news had been received from them.

One of their teams of dogs had returned, and it is feared the party will never be heard from again.

In the last letter, written by Mr. Leffingwell in November, he said the journey over the ice was to be started in March last, and was expected to occupy two months.

Leffingwell's Last Letter

Mr. Leffingwell said: "Next March, Captain Mikkelsen and I shall make a two months' trip north over the ice from Flaxman Island to explore that area. There is a good prospect of discovering land there. It has been reported by whalers, the tide indicates it, and the fact that the ice pack never leaves the shore for more than a few miles. These all point to land not more than a hundred miles away. In June or July I hope to go up the Kagua river to do some geological work. When navigation opens up in August we shall sail to Herschel Island and call for mail thence to Banks land and make our sled trip west over the ice as was our original program."

GOVERNMENT TO LOOK INTO HOMESTEAD LAW

CARSON CITY, Sep. 6.—Advices from the Department of the Interior today are to the effect that a special agent of that department will arrive in Mina shortly for the purpose of passing upon the rights of Mrs. Anna M. Curry, who has made application under the homestead and land laws for property in the vicinity of Mina. Some time ago Mrs. Curry made application at the government land office in this city for homestead rights under the law.

Fourteen miners who regarded her act as one of encroachment on their lands, filed a protest against the granting of a homestead to her, setting forth that the land was more distinctively mineral than agricultural and therefore not subject to the force and effect of the homestead laws.

The news that the Department of the Interior will send a special agent to investigate into the rights of the opposing parties, is regarded here as an awakening of justice on behalf of the miners.

RESERVE VOTES ARE WHAT COUNT AND CONTESTANTS SHOULD HUSTLE TO LAY IN THEIR SUPPLY RIGHT NOW

Total Vote in Journal Contest Beginning to Mount up Showing The Enthusiasm

By leaps and bounds mounts the total vote being cast in The Journal contest for the 27 valuable awards offered to the most popular ladies of the State of Nevada and Inyo and Nevada counties in California and the interest that is being taken in the balloting by the readers of The Journal is surprising.

Day by day the enthusiasm grows keener in the contest. New candidates enter and the old ones are there with a firm determination to win and each hour brings in more votes. Every candidate realizes that she must make the most of each day so every day in the contest grows more exciting.

The whole territory covered by The Journal is alive to the issue and as the contest progresses the interest will undoubtedly reach fever heat.

Reserve Votes

It is a good plan to get a reserve vote in readiness for the close of the contest as you are never positive of the number of votes your competitors have and a reserve may come into good play on the last day.

The Daily Coupons

A coupon appears in the paper every day which will be good for one vote, and will count for the contestant whose name appears on it. Thousands of votes can be gained by having all your friends save these coupons and in a short time a few thousand can be collected from them.

THESE COUPONS MUST BE CLIPPED NEATLY FROM THE PAPER AND EITHER SENT TO THE CONTEST DEPARTMENT BY MAIL, OR VOTED IN THE BALLOT BOX AT THE JOURNAL OFFICE.

THE VOTES ARE COUNTED EACH DAY AT 2:30 P. M. TOTALS TO APPEAR IN THE NEXT DAY'S ISSUE. VOTES POLLED AFTER 2 P. M. WILL NOT BE COUNTED UNTIL THE DAY AFTER.

Votes Not Transferable

The question is often asked if votes can be transferred from one contestant to another, but the contest department desires it expressely understood that no votes can be transferred from one contestant to another.

The Valuable Prizes

The prizes are such that any lady can well be proud to win one. First comes the Grand Capital Award, the 1907 Rambler Touring Car, which is one of the best cars procurable for $1700, and combines style, elegance, comfort and durability.

The Krell Auto Grand Piano, value $1000, is the finest instrument of its kind carried by the Eilers Music Company of Reno, and can be seen on exhibition at their store, where the contestants, their friends and the public are cordially invited to call and examine it.

The three blocks of mining stock which will make up the other grand awards have been chosen with regard to their intrinsic merit. They are all Nevada stocks, they are active in the markets and the winners of them can readily convert them into cash if it should be so desired.

Don't Pass Up a Chance

The $125 solitaire diamond rings will appeal to the ladies entered in the contest, as any lady is proud to be the possessor of a valuable diamond ring. The scholarships are in a way the most valuable of all the awards, as a business education enables a lady to qualify herself for a position of responsibility and trust, where her earnings are gauged by what she knows and not by the time that is spent at her daily task. This business training may be obtained free by winning a scholarship in The Journal's Grand Award Contest. Think about this, don't pass up a chance that means something in after years.

BREUNER'S

The Business Tide

Is Still Rising

Five years ago timid business men, all over the world, felt that the tide of business prosperity must soon turn—that the pendulum must shortly swing backward to the other side—that rising values, extensive investments of savings funds, the enormous increase in volume of business in every line, must bring the dreaded reaction; must bring "hard-times."

There are not so many of these timid people now—but there are still some who are afraid of their own shadow in a business way; and who see evil portent in every speck on the business horizon.

A great man once defined a pessimist as "one who sees two evils where but one exists, AND ACCEPTS THEM BOTH." Occasionally a merchant justifies this definition.

The real BUSINESS OPTIMIST is he who refuses to see even one evil where two exist—or to accept either.

As a matter of fact, the wisest business men (not the most optimistic—but the most far-seeing) believe, at the present moment, that, BUSINESS FLOOD-TIDE IS A LIFE-TIME AWAY!

With usual and harmless fluctuations, BUSINESS IS GOING TO BE BETTER AND BETTER EVERY YEAR FOR THE REST OF OUR NATURAL LIVES—so that WE should not spend much time worrying about what we will do when "hard times" comes again. And, as always, in good and poor times, the merchant who advertises most judiciously is going to be the biggest merchant in his line; and the one who is "next best" in advertising will be "next best" in standing and prosperity.

SUICIDE WAS A CULTURED MAN

Charles B. Walker, Who Shot Himself Yesterday Morning, Was B. A. of Kentucky University

REASON FOR ACT UNEXPLAINED

Fits of Brooding and Despondency Had Marked His Career, His Friends Say

The reasons which prompted Charles B. Walker to take his life by shooting, early yesterday morning, in the Wilson house, as reported in The Journal, are not yet fully explained. He had almost no intimate friends in Reno and few acquaintances so that very little is known of his private life. Any one of the four shots fired by him would have alone been fatal, as they found their lodgment in heart lungs, stomach and brain.

A Man of Culture

A preliminary examination by Coroner Bell, and a search into the effects of the dead man, revealed the fact that he was a member of a family of more than ordinary refinement and culture. Letters from his sister, Mrs. John H. Hancock, 1318 Brook street, Louisville, Ky., and from his niece indicate that he was a graduate of the University of Kentucky and moved in high social circles. H. V. Lloyd, in whom he confided, states that Walker was given to fits of brooding and despondency over ill health and bad fortune, and he sometimes spoke in a way to indicate the presence of the idea of self-destruction.

Walker had lived in Reno only about three months and had no occupation while here, although he had in his career followed gambling more or less.

Could Not Locate Shooting

He lived a very quiet existence and his suicide created consternation in the Wilson house, where he roomed. The first shots were not readily located by those who heard the reports, and when his deadly purpose was revealed by the last, and the police broke into his room, he was beyond all aid.

Fetters & Durrett took charge of the body. The autopsy by Dr. Tyson revealed nothing to explain further the cause of suicide. Coroner Bell will conduct the inquest today at 9 a. m.

ROSH HOSHONA SERVICE IN RENO

Beginning tomorrow night, all orthodox and most liberal Jews throughout the world will celebrate the opening of New Year, Rosh Hoshona.

In Reno, as there is no rabbi here, the services will be conducted by Sol Levy, M. Clink, S. Jacobs and other prominent Jews. Harmony Hall has been engaged and the services will continue through tomorrow night and until Monday morning at 8 o'clock, beginning at 6 o'clock tomorrow evening.

Ten days from the first day of the new year will be celebrated the day of atonement, Yom Kippur. The intervening ten days are devoted to repentence and penitential exercises to render atonement to divine Providence for the digressions from rectitude committed during the year.

From Creation, according to the Jewish faith, 5,667 years have elapsed, and for this reason the celebration is at hand. It is held when the moon is at its full. In the seven thousandth year it is the Jewish belief that the resurrection is at hand, each year counting for a day, as mentioned in the scriptures

UNIVERSITY'S FIRST GENERAL ASSEMBLY

When president Stubbs of the University of Nevada looked around yesterday morning in the gymnasium of the institution and saw the gathering of students at the first general assembly for the semester, he looked pleased. It was the largest assembly that the University of Nevada has ever had. Everyone of the faculty felt pleased, too, for the attendance, it was pointed out, showed the increasing interest in student life.

The various changes, nothing radical, in the curriculum, made since last year, were explained by the doctor, and he asked all the youths and young ladies to put their whole minds into their studies. He made announcements, too, that the mining building, the Mackey School of Mines, would be open next spring. It will be completed by January 1, but the equipment and machinery will then have to be installed. The landscape gardening of the University grounds will be begun next spring.

STREET LIGHTS ON AGAIN

Many of the street lights that were put out of commission when lightning struck the Fleish power station a few days ago, were on again last night, the damage done by the lightning having been repaired.

It Was Only Torpedoes

Many people in the vicinity of the depot last night when the Tonopah local pulled out, thought they heard pistol shots, and connected the reports with the stopping of the train. The reports were caused by signal torpedoes on the track, in obedience to which the train halted momentarily.

Weather Report.

The highest temperature recorded was 82 degrees, and the lowest was 48 degrees. HARRY O GEREN, Section Director.

FREIGHT TRAIN VS. TELEPHONE

Wager Won From Pittsburger on Speed of Mail as Opposed to Long Distance Call

LETTER BY FREIGHT WINS OUT

Telephone People Say Carson Man Was Not in Town When Call Was Issued

Ernest Thompson, of Pittsburg, who arrived in Reno a few days since is a wiser, and madder, if not sadder man, than he was a few days since when he got off the train from the city where they make sensations and trusts, and the reason for this lies in the fact that he lost a bet on the telephone.

Yesterday he confided to S. B. Crane that he was anxious to hold converse with Earl Talbot of Carson, and would call him up by telephone.

"If you want to talk to him today you had better get on the train and go over there," advised Crane.

"Nonsense. I can call him up and finish talking with him before the train would get started," was the reply.

"I'll bet you a box of cigars that I can write a letter and get an answer from Carson before you can get your man on the telephone," was the proposition made by Crane to the man from the city made famous by Harry Thaw, Corey and others.

The bet was made and each got busy with his own particular scheme for conversation traffic with the capitol. Crane wrote a letter and sent it by the freight train, and Thompson put in a telephone call. Then they waited. Time passed and the telephone, though appealed to tearfully and otherwise, failed to bring results, but when the train got in last evening, it brought Crane an answer to his letter, and won him the cigars.

The telephone people explain that it was not the fault of the service that Thompson failed to get an answer, but to the fact that the man he wanted to talk to was not to be found in Carson.

"BUFFALO CROSSROADS" PLEASES AT HIPPODROME

A fair house witnessed the opening performance of "Buffalo Crossroads" at the Hippodrome last night. The show was good, the efforts of the company seeming to improve with each new bill put on. The rural drama of last night has a deeper plot than any that the Newman-Estelle company has yet produced and the heavy work was handled very well.

The play is the story of an old man murdered for his money, circumstantial evidence pointing to his son as the murderer, but in the final act he is saved from trial by the divine power of his financee in reading the thoughts of others. She forces the villain to confess and in attempting to escape he is struck by lightning. The scenic effects of this piece of work are worthy of mention. The country fair scene was also good.

Miss Hope Mosher as Alice Granger, who saves her lover, has a difficult part and proved herself capable. Truman DeRoame as the unjustly accused son won still more honor, which was well deserved. B. Reynolds as the old deacon did the best character work of the evening. Denton Vane and Edna Estelle afford the comedy in their usual pleasing vein. Walter Newman in the "heavy" role does the best work he has done since the engagement.

Lightning Change at Night

As an example in lightning moving, the work done by Cheatham's drug store last night, stands unequalled in Reno. People on North Virginia street last night saw a band of men working like ants in the drug store and a notice in the window stated the concern was being removed two doors below. Fixtures, bottles, glasses and chemicals were rushed from the old store to the new and by midnight the change had been made. Today the drug store opens for business in its new quarters with but little indication of the strenuous time last night.

AERONAUTS MAY LAND IN RENO

International Aeronautic Cup Race to Start From St. Louis and End—?

THEY MAY GO ON TO VERDI

All Cities Asked to Prepare for Their Entertainment Anyway

Some time in October Reno is likely to be called upon to receive within her gates strangers who will not arrive by any of the conventional lines of travel. If they come, they will arrive in their private cars, said cars being attached to huge baloons.

This word comes from New York, and conveys the information that an international aeronautic cup race will leave St. Louis on the 21st of October and where it will end is a matter to be decided after the race is over, and all the participants have been heard from, if they ever are. If not the race will not end.

The Aeronauts are Different

The aeronauts who will take part in the race will be French, German, English and American, and every city in the land has been asked through its newspapers to prepare to receive them as guests without warning, because their wireless may not be working, and besides travelers by this route are never certain of their meal stations and a few other things which railroad travelers have come to regard as being essential to comfort. The aeronaut is different. He knows he is lucky if he don't light in the ocean or a barbed wire fence, and in the light of this knowledge, trifles such as meals and sleeping accommodations sink into insignificance.

May Go to Verdi

As the letter says, one or more of these balloons may land in Reno, and they may go on to Verdi. It is all a guess, but the main thing requested is preparation for their entertainment anyway.

There will be 12 balloons, three representing each country, and each will carry a pilot and an assistant. The race will be under the auspices of the Aero Club of America.

PERSONAL AND SOCIAL

Mrs. Ann Hathaway, head trimmer for Mrs. Dennis Sullivan, has returned to Reno after spending several weeks in San Francisco studying the new fall styles.

Miss Elizabeth Wightman is home again after a two-months' outing at Santa Cruz and San Francisco.

Dr. W. B. Mack of the veterinary department of the University of Nevada, left last night on the Overland Limited for Kansas City to attend the meeting of the American Veerinary Medical Association.

M. Clink, the tailor, was injured Thursday night, with his little son, through the overturning of his buggy on Second street. The horse became frightened at the sound of a trolley-car bell.

The pain was almost unceasing for at least two weeks and I took advantage of the offer and went to a drug store and commenced the treatment. PASS THE BUCK TO JUDGE PIKE

Curious Tangle of the Anti-Free-Speech Law and Arrests for Him to Unravel

BROWN'S PETITION FOR RELIEF

Citing of Judge Bell Was Necessary Procedure to Get Matter in District Court

The anti-free-speech ordinance, the test of the same by Rev. L. M. Burwell and the Salvation and Volunteer Armies, the failure of Attorney Brown, counsel for the seekers of legal light, to have his appeal perfected to the satisfaction of Police Judge Bell, Judge Bell's declared intention to impose fines in default of appeal, Attorney Brown's petition to District Judge Pike for relief in the premises—all these elements have contrived to make as intricate a legal, spiritual and professional tangle, as is unraveled in many moons.

In the absence of Judge Pike, who went to Winnemucca last night, The Jaurnal reporter received from Judge W. D. Jones a statement of the legal aspect of the case, which clears up a point of doubt which might arise from the cusary reading of some reports which would appear to foreshadow Judge Pike's attitude in the determination of the points involved.

"The citing of Judge Bell," said Judge Jones, "to appear before the district court and show cause why a notice of appeal in this case should not be granted, does not at all indicate the animus of the court, as might appear to a layman, who reads as he runs. It is merely the necessary procedure and preliminary to getting the matter before the district court, that it may take notice of the facts. Any impression that such action presages the intention in Judge Pike's mind is erroneous, and in saying this I do not speak for Judge Pike, but as a lawyer."

Taft and the Islands

That fling taken at William Jennings Bryan last night at Portland, Ore., by Secretary Taft, does not strike the average American—and the average American is a man of sense—as being in good taste. Mr. Taft said that, as congressman, Mr. Bryan had acquiesced in the taking of the Philippines.

That is puerile and unworthy of Mr. Taft. It is true that this whole country went wild the day the news came that Dewey had captured the Philippines by taking Manila bay and sinking the Spanish fleet, but that was a war measure. The moment the people understood that the Philippines were to be retained and that we were to pay the Spanish for them, there commenced to be criticism of the course of the government. It was then that many Democrats—but not all—did oppose the administration on that score.

The opposition to the retention of the Philippines is on economic and political grounds. Mr. Bryan is honest and sincere in his opposition as is Mr. Taft in desiring to retain the islands. It does not become so eminent a man and representative of the administration, therefore, to say in reply to Mr. Bryan's announcement of his stand: "You're another."

If Tom Jones and John Smith did favor taking the islands eight years ago, when everybody did, they may yet object to keeping them now. Mr. Taft must show some reason for maintaining the flag in the Philippines, for he cannot satisfy a large part of his own party, let alone many Democrats, by merely making faces when the brown man of Manila is mentioned. And that is what he did last night.

The Fakers of Shanghai

A report was sent out from Shanghai this week that the United States had leased a coaling station at Norvik Bay. We looked, naturally, for the denial. Last night it came. Acting Secretary Newberry of the Navy Department announced from Washington that there was no truth in the story.

Shanghai correspondents must be unpleasantly situated, these days, with regard to pocket money, for it is a long time since the golden pickings of the Japanese war. That city is a hotbed of the most graceless fakers on the face of the earth. They send out stories that have not even the merit of a close resemblance to the truth. Sitting around their clubs, they think of things with the morning pick-me-up before tiffin, develop them during the meal, enlarge upon them while absorbing Scotch and soda all afternoon, and by dinner they have a well-developed yarn.

Then it goes on the cable and the telegraph editors all over the world wonder whether the jim-jams in Shanghai always take the form of weird and impossible yarns

The Bee's Good Work

Over in California there is one newspaper that deserves the support of the northern part of the state if any journal does. It is the Sacramento Bee. Whenever there is anything big to be done to boost California, that newspaper is right there, ready for the work.

When all the eminent irrigationists of the nation were to come to the coast and gather at Sacramento, the Bee got to work and issued a special edition that just about exhausts the subject. It has covered the ground so well that there is nothing left to be said.

But that is the way the Bee usually does things. It has not overlooked Nevada, either, and an article by Professor Thurtell is the interesting feature of one page.

PUBLIC OPINION

The Kaiser's Doctrine

With all his supposed "modernity," which, after all, is not really more modern than the intellectual restlessness of his most famous predecessor on the throne of Prussia, Frederick the Great, the Kaiser is the most medevial in spirit of all the prominent personages of the twentieth century world. The Czar has no time even to meddle with the spirit of the Middle Ages, or to cherish traditions. The revolution in his empire moves slowly, to be sure, but it is quick enough to keep him alive to the eager demands of the present.

What a splendidly illuminative expression of the Kaiser medievalism is found in his speech replying to the welcome of Hanover! Peace rests on the empire, said the Kaiser, "thanks to the gracious dispensation of heaven and the swords of our trusty troops." For their right to pursue their trades and professions, to build up the empire commercially, to promote education and the arts, the Kaiser's subjects, having duly thanked heaven, must also thank the prodigious standing army that fattens on their labors. With perfect sincerity the Emperor of Germany went on to say:

"May God grant that I shall succeed in the future in keeping this valuable pledge, without which the most assiduous work of burghers, peasants and workmen is vain."

Your employment of genius, talent and skill, your ever-increasing industry, your place in the world's trade (which you have secured in spite of kings and traditions) is ts nothing unless I, the divinely annointed, with my awe-inspiring authority, can maintain peace. So the imperial utterance may be rendered.—New York Times.

A School for Railroad Men

The traveling public will warmly commend the action of a score of high officials in railroad circles who have joined in a plan for the establishment of a school of railroading to educate men needed in the operating departments of the big systems of the country. It is asserted that the railroads of the country need fully 200,000 more men to meet present requirements, and it is claimed that the new plan will fit men, already physically acceptable, for employment in many positions requiring additional forces. As a special inducement to young men to take up this work, it is proposed that the tuition be refunded by the railroad company with which they secure employment and give satisfactory service for one year.

The new venture is in response to the recognized demand for more and better trained men for the railroad service. Officials of the railroads fully appreciate the losses suffered by the railroads and by the public through the use of "green" hands. The officials have always had the excuse that they were compelled to use inexperienced help because of the short supply of the men trained in the work, and the public has been forced to accept the excuse, while taking the risk of loss on account of the raw recruits. It is not to be expected, of course, that men can be taught by mail to run locomotives and operate trains, but railroad officials are convinced that the rudiments of railroading can be taught so as to enable men to become expert in their work in a short probationary term of service.—Omaha Bee.

Bryan and the South

Mr. Bryan, it is stated, will, before the meeting of the next Democratic National Convention, make another tour of the South. Traveling in the guise of an entertainer, instructing the people by lectures, he will yet keep both ears open and both eyes peeled for politics, and inform himself about present conditions down there. Has he lost ground in that territory as the result of his Madison Square Garden speech of last year? His enemies say yes, and his hard-and-fast friends no. Undoubtedly a number of prominent Southern Democrats oppose his proposition of railroads. But, so far, that opposition des nt include pposition to him as the party's leader. These same men predict his nomination next year, and pledge him their support.

This seems to suit Mr. Bryan. Although, somewhat dictatorial, he is neither an ugly nor a quarrelsome man, but, as a rule, gets along very well with those who differ with him. At St. Louis in 1904 he had a number of lively sessions with men who were aggressively against his views both as to the candidate and the platform, but no open break followed with any of them. Mr. Bryan will hear arguments on the railroad question. His is not in a hurry about that. Time, he thinks, will vindicate his opinion, and he is willing to wait for the result. But next year's presidential nomination cannot be postponed. That must take place according to schedule and Mr. Bryan aspires to lead his party again for the country's greatest honor.

He wants the South's support. Orators have already had a strong hold on the South. The people down there respond readily to the eloquence of the stump. They demand in a leader the ability to state his case attractively. Their earliest leaders were orators; and coming on down to Prentiss and Yancy and Toombs, and later still to Lamar and Ben Hill and Henry to rule the roost.—Washington Star.

TRIED TO BURN GRAND THEATRE

Incendiary Sets Fire to Dressing Room but Blaze Is Discovered in Time

SMOKE GAVE THE WARNING

Rumor Said Discharged Actor Was Cause but Manager Cliff Says This Is Not So

The safety or destruction by fire of the Grand Theatre building was "in the lap of the gods," Thursday afternoon. In the top dressing room, in dangerous proximity to the flies and side-scenes, insidious, treacherous flames licked their leisurely way among the various costumes and trappings of the player-folk with little outward show of the danger that lurked potential to the breath of one fortuitous draft, to compass the burning of the entire building.

It was dark away up there in that little hole, where the "just-for-today toilettes" of the soubrettes are made, and it was deserted. Furthermore the attending circumstances suggest a willful, premeditated, and almost successful attempt at arson,—the worst kind of arson,—that of the haunting Iroquois theatre memory—the firing of a theater soon to be the amusement place of hundreds of spectators at the evening show.

Sometime after 3 o'clock, employes noticed a peculiar smell of smoke, which when investigated, led to the discovery of a smouldering fire in the rubbish-heap of clothes remaining in the dressing room. The fire had almost burned itself out without spreading, and the damage was slight, but the possibilities are fearful to speculate on.

Tuesday evening Burt Haverley "The Minstrel Man," in this week's bill at the Grand fell down in his lines. In truth, he almost fell down in his tracks, all from looking too intently at a beer sign, it is surmised. Manager Cliff cut his act from the bill and Burt, yesterday afternoon, came up to the playhouse for his money and his clothes. He had with him a boon companion and after selecting such belongings as he desired, left with protestations of friendship for all.

Rumor around the theatre connected Haverley's name with the fire, but there was nothing to base any such report upon and Manager Cliff said there was nothing to connect him with it. Haverley left town he said, that evening.

Last evening, Haverley's card was replaced by a soubrette act, very satisfactorily done.

BEATON CASE DISMISSED BY JUDGE POLLOCK

On account of the non-appearance of the complaining witness against N. J. Beaton, charged with selling goods not lawfully his own and appropriating the funds, the defendant was dismissed by Judge Pollock.

Mitchell, who claimed to have owned the articles sold by Beaton, was not to be found when the case was called and the only thing left to do was to dismiss the action. Judge Daly, who was employed for the defense, stated that there was no evidence against his client and that had Mitchell appeared to prosecute the case it would have resulted in an acquittal.

The Beaton case cleared up the docket in Judge Pollock's court for the week. The justice court has been the scene of great activity during the past several days. Several objectionable characters who were rounded up by the police early in the week are engaged in cleaning the streets and the police state that more will be placed there unless they mend their ways or move on.

CITY CONTINUES TO PUT DOWN CEMENT WALKS

The threatened legal proceedings of the property holders who objected to having the city put in the sidewalks seem to have petered out. For the past two weeks the contractors to whom the city awarded the job of putting down the cement have been steadily at work and there has been "nothing doing" from those who objected to the work.

From present indications the work on the Reserve will be completed early next week and then the force of men now employed will be moved to Harriman street.

When work is started on Harriman street it is rumored that the trouble will be started. Certain of the property holders of that street have stated that they will stop proceedings by an injunction as soon as the work is started. Outside parties are waiting to see the fun. The city council is saying nothing but evidently does not look for trouble.

EVANS IS OUT; HEAD SWATHED IN BANDAGES

Martin Evans, the man who is alleged to have had his skull fractured by a blow from a "billy" wielded by Officer Bryant is able to be out. He still wears a bandage about his head and is quite weak, but otherwise appears to be all right and out of serious danger.

Evans' threatened action against the city on account of the beating he claims to have received seems to have been an idle boast as, so far, he has failed to do anything.

Fremont, the other man who was arrested by the officers, and who was fighting with Evans at the time of the arrest, is again at work at Young's hotel and appears to have suffered no injuries.

DELANO BOY IS THE VICTIM OF DIPHTHERIA

After an illness of only a few days, Ernest Henry Delano, the 8-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. T. L. Delano of Sparks, died Thursday night from diphtheria. The body of the child was taken to Wadsworth last night and interment will take place in private tomorrow. The precaution of moving the remains at night and having a private burial was taken to prevent the possibility of the dread disease being given to any one else.

The Delano boy's death is the first to occur in Sparks from diphtheria. For some time this disease has existed in Sparks but owing to the vigilance of the physicians it has been prevented from spreading.

BLUE ROCKS TO DUST ARE TURNED BY CRACK SHOTS

Never before in the daytime did the blues break and the birds go down to destruction with the rapidity, regularity and precision that marked yesterday's performance of the crack pump-gun, single-gun and triple-gun experts of national fame. And also, "Never again" in the night time will there or can there be a repitition of such absolute extermination of the mental "blues" to the tune of the bombardment of "wealthy water" corks, or such a havoc wrought to the "birds" of the epicurean.

It was pop—broken blues and fallen birds by day, and pop,—broken "blues" and "dead ducks" by night. QUICK WORK IN PREPARING FOR GANS-BRITT GO

Yesterday was promoter Jack Gleason's day to put one over on Willis Britt. The "boy manager" was having lots of sport kidding Jack about how much work he was going to have the latter part of the week getting the ball park in shape for Monday's battle between Joe Gans and Jimmy Britt. But Gleason was quietly mapping and schemings things out and spring a big surprise on the sportive Willis.

Jack had the ring which was built for the Britt-Nelson fight hauled to Recreation Park. As there was no ball game scheduled for San Francisco Gleason thought it wise to have a rehearsal, and in a jiffy his staff was at work. Soon the ring was pitched and put in shape for battle, being located in the vicinity of the pitcher's box. Then the sections were blocked off in accordance with the diagram. As soon as everything was in shipshape Jack telephoned to Willis to come to the ball park. When the latter saw what had been done he was agreeably surprised and was more than surprised to hear in how short a time everything had been prepared and put in place

This removes all doubt as to whether the management can prepare the park in time for the lightweight championship battle.

GOLDFIELD HAS A STABBING AFFRAY

GOLDFIELD, Sep. 6.—During a street fight in Main street about 3 o'clock this morning, near Hall, Frank Curran was stabbed in the side. His assailant, Lee Garrett, escaped and has not since been captured. The men were fighting for some time when one drew a knife. In another moment he had swung the knife and stabbed the other in the side, inflicting a serious wound. Curran ran up the street for help and Garrett disappeared. Deputy Sheriff Chris Grant, who came along just as the men started to run, caught the wounded man and sent him to the Miners' hospital. At the hospital it is reported that Curran will recover in a few days.

GOLDBANK NAME OF NEW CAMP

Situated 40 Miles South of Winnemucca and Shows Signs of Developing Good Values

GOLDFIELD MEN WANT LEASES

Ore Yields Metal to Roasting Which Shows Silver and Gold Values

"Goldbank," says a correspondent of the Silver State, the new mining camp 40 miles south of Winnemucca, is remarkable for its uniformly high surface values in gold and silver and its large, well-defined veins of ore which have already been proven to be over a mile long. The camp is quite accessible, being within one mile of an old, well-traveled wagon road, which reaches the old mining camp of Kennedy, twenty miles further south.

"The mines are upon the low foothills on the west side of Pleasant valley. The formation is porphyry and trachite, similar to the other big mining camps in the state. There is an abundance of water for all purposes. There are few mining camps more favorably situated for economical mining and reduction of its ores.

Silver-Gold Values

Several mines have been opened and each one of them has the identical rich sulphide, carrying values in gold and silver of the average on the surface of $56. These values increase rapidly as depth is gained. Ore from a ten-foot cut on one of A. P. Smith's claims, on being roasted in a forge, was completely covered with beads of silver, with a light straw color, which would indicate high gold values. High-grade ore is being piled up for immediate shipment and the milling ore is being dumped over in great piles for future treatment by mills, which can be operated here cheaper than many other camps on account of the big supply of water.

Goldfielders to Lease

Mining men from Goldfield have been here recently and took many samples, and when they saw the assay returns they made the owner of the New Mohawk and Goldbank mines an offer to lease both or part of the mines on very liberal terms. Very likely some leases will be given these parties.

"Another strike about one mile west was made last week on veins which paralleled the Goldbank and seem to be true fissures. But little work has been done on them yet, but the ore shows good lead-silver values and the ledges are of considerable width."

SOMETIMES IT COMES TO PROSPECTORS

Sol Kunkel, Veteran Nevada Miner, Sells Prospects and Buys Home

Once in a while it happens that the man who spends years in the deserts and mountains looking for mines, not only finds them, but later succeeds in getting enough from the discovery to provide for his old age in well earned comfort. This is what happened to Sol Kunkel according to a Winnemucca paper, which says:

"Yesterday Sol Kunkel received the final payment for the Humboldt Chief group of mining claims, situated in the Humboldt range. The property was sold to W. G. Adamson and New York parties and the amount received by Mr. Kunkel is well in four figures. The purchasers are to commence work on the property as soon as the necessary arrangements can be made.

"The Humboldt Chief vein was what caused the stampede to the Humboldt range in the early days when immensely rich ore was taken out. Mr. Kunkel has always been thoroughly convinced that this property would prove to be one of Humboldt county's big producers when properly developed as it will be under the plan now contemplated by the New York operators.

"The purchase price received for the property was of such a substantial nature that Mr. Kunkel has been enabled to purchase a fine home in Salt Lake City and still have a good sized bank account.

"Mr. Kunkel is one of Nevada's veteran prospectors. He has lived in Humboldt county over 30 years and in the late 60's operated mines on Winnemucca mountain. He has the distinction of having made the first shipment of ore from this place. It was hauled by ox teams to the Pacific coast and thence shipped to England for treatment."

HYKE MINER MAKES EXPENSES WITH MORTAR

Bucakroo Claim Is to be Worked Through A Long Tunnel; Others Are Looking Well

Guy Bishop arrived last evening from Hyke and states that while it is quiet there at the present time, many of the claim owners are working steadily on their properties, says a Humboldt county exchange. Mr. Bishop had a lot of fine specimens of gold ore and stated that he was pounding out expenses in a hand mortor. He has been working for the past few months on his claims, which are showing up well.

At the Buckaroo mine men are at work running a long tunnel to tap the vein at depth. At this property there is a considerable tonnage of ore on the dump and it is tht intention of the company that owns the property to thoroughly open up the mine before attempting to handle the ore, which carries high-grade gold values.

Not a Presidential Candidate

SEATTLE, Sept. 6.—Judge J. M. Dickinson, of Chicago, president of the American Bar Association, who has been prominently mentioned as a possible candidate for President of the United States, denied today that he had any presidential ambitions.

BATTLE MOUNTAIN PROPERTY DEAL

Guggenheim Exploration Syndicate Is Negotiating for Group of Twenty-three

THE PROPERTY OF ELY MEN

Deal Involves at Least $150,000 and Has Been Hanging Fire Since Last Winter

The Guggenheim Exploration Syndicate is still negotiating for the copper holdings of Newton Boyd, Thos. Rockhill and Will H. Bray, pioneers of the Ely district, says the Expositor. According to Mr. Boyd, who arrived from Battle Mountain last night to look after his Ely interests, C. Madden, an expert in the employ of the Guggenheims, spent four days looking over his copper claims about six miles from Battle Mountain. Mr. Madden left for the east yesterday to report the result of his examination to headquarters.

Will Investigate

Three other mining men will make a thorough investigation of the property. Should the report of these men be satisfactory, the syndicate will arrange to take over the twenty-three claims now owned by the Ely men.

If a sale is consummated, at least $150,000 will be involved, as the property has long since passed the prospect stage, and the permanency of the deposits have been proven.

Examined Last Winter

The Guggenheims sent several experts out to Battle Mountain last winter to examine these properties, and although their report was favorable, the Ely men received notice that the Guggenheims would be unable to purchase, on account of the stringency in the money market at that time.

"W have discontinued our shaft work," said Mr. Boyd, "and are now devoting our time to driving two tunnels. The mines are showing up satisfactorily, and I feel certain that we will make a sale this time, as the Guggenheim expert remained at the mines four days, and seemed pleased with what he had seen."

PRODUCERS GRIEVANCES AGAINST THE SMELTERS

Sub-Committee of Mining Congress to Undertake Plan of Settlement

For the purpose of standardizing as far as possible the settlements for ores throughout the mining country, Harry S. Joseph and George W. Riter, the sub-committee of the general committee appointed by the American Mining Congress on the mutual relations and grievances of the ore producers, formulated a series of questions for producers and custom smelters, have distributed them to all producers of precious rock.

This series of questions goes into the system of settlements on all metals, and the congress will see to it that all producers secure the same rate. The answers are expected to show a great variety of methods of ore settlements, and will serve to open a way for a more equitable basis where the same is required.

It may be stated that the smelting conditions in Utah are much more favorable than in other states. This is one of the strong arguments that has caused ore to be sent to the local market from all over the west. It is generally appreciated that Salt Lake presents the best open market of the country. There are certain reforms, however, that will result in time even here, as no better way of benefitting all producers could be desired than for the producers to get interested tooth and toe nail in the Mining Congress.—Exchange.

OTHER METALS FALL; SILVER IS RISING

Mining Journal Comments on Prices and Movements, and Augers Well

The price of silver has been well maintained and has, in fact, risen recently when other metals were falling. Last week it passed 32d per ounce in London, and closely approximated 75c in New York, the highest figure for a number of years, with the exception of the closing months of 1906, when these prices were slightly exceeded, says the Engineering and Mining Journal.

There has been no unusual demand for coinage in this country, where the mint purchases have been higher than they were a year ago. France has taken some kuantity, but no unusual amount. The support to the market has come wholly from the east. It should rather be said, wholly from India. China has not been a buyer at any time this year, and, in fact, has reversed the usual movement several times during the year by shipping round lots to London. India, however, has been a strong and steady buyer and has not been discouraged by the recent rise in prices. This indicates a prosperous year in that country, and it is likely that good buying will continue for some months to come.

ROAD BUILDERS STRIKE RICH GOLD DEPOSIT

Find North of Sawtooth in South End of the Antelope Range

WINNEMUCCA, Nev., Sep. 6.—This morning some rich gold ore was brought to town from the south end of the Antelope range. The vein from which this ore came, was discovered while doing grading work at that place. This section of Humboldt county is noted for its rich ore and it is more than likely that a number of veins will be uncovered before the big cut is finished. Where the work is going on is only a short distance north of Sawtooth, which is noted for its rich ledges of silver and gold-bearing ore.

CONSOLIDATED HOLDS STAGE

Market Opens Strong With Much Trading, But Weakens at Close

RISES AND FALLS 20 POINTS

Florence and Red Hills Strong and Active; Tonopahs Show Signs of Life

With the opening of the San Francisco exchange yesterday morning the demand for Consolidated at an increasing price was one of the features of the session. Three thousand five hundred shares of the stock changed hands at prices ranging from 7.57 to 7.67 1-2, and at the close of the morning session the price asked was 7.70, the opening bid being 7.67 1-2. During the afternoon session the stock reacted to 7.52 1-2 asked, with a price of 7.50.

Combination was firm at 2.30.

Florence Trading

The heaviest trading for the day was in Florence, of which about 1000 shares were bought, mostly all in 100 share lots, at a price ranging from 4.85 to 5, the activity being undoubtedly due to the news of the day before regarding a strike of high grade.

Red Hills was also an active trader, nearly 8000 shares showing in the records around 60 cents. As a part of this trading was done on margins, however, it tells nothing excepting of a speculative nature.

Extension and Jim Butler

The Tonopah market showed more signs of life than it has for some time past, trading in Jim Butler and Tonopah Extension being the features.

Although a few sales were recorded on the Bullfrog list, they were small and scattering, and confined to the cheaper stocks.

Manhattan remained weak and dull, and there was nothing of note in the action of Wonder prices, and no sales. Among the Fairview stocks Eagles Nest made a little gain over the day before, and the closing price asked for Nevada Hills was 5.15.

those principles which have enabled us to progress thus far (Applause)

'I like the splendid optimism that inspires the hearts of the American people I have just come from San Francisco—not the San Francisco I knew three years ago, the New San Francisco'

[Here the train began to move]

'My good friends, good bye I wish I had time to take you by the hand"

As tall, perhaps as the conservative caricaturist pictures him, Mr Fairbanks loomed up high above the heads of those on the ground The elevation of the train added to the dignity of his position He wore a tan, felt hat His frock coat showed dust on the silk-lined lapels A white vest with dark figures was wrinkled about his chest indicating the strenuous life on a Pullman Gray trousers and square toed shoes were the remainder of the make up

Train Was Late

Mr Fairbanks left Oakland late in the evening He was scheduled to get in here about a m but the lateness of the train running in two sections brought him into the local yards three hours after the appointed time The first section of No 24 stopped opposite the station and for five minutes the cars in which the Vice-President Senator Nixon Secretary Bride of the Nevada Commercial League Captain J B Menardi F W Thomas and newspaper correspondents were talking remained west of the Sierra street crossing

The Vice-President thought the wait would be there and he began addressing a handful of people who ran to the spot to see him but the train pulled up to North Virginia street and the crowd was left on the tracks to rush a block after the distinguished visitor

Hardly had the Vice-President started to talk when the fast mail pulled by on the main line Greeting the Vice-President with a familiar tone to the surprise of the crowd the engineer took his 'Mogul' past at a lively speed

'I am waiting on you Mr Fairbanks called to the engineer At this cordiality the audience on the ground clapped its approval

Many in the crowd would have been glad to shake the hand of Mr Fairbanks Children boys and girls hugged the platform of the rear coach expecting as they expressed it during the address to get a chance to touch the garments of the Vice-President

dollars per ton, and would not guarantee results

Under the system of reduction that grew up on the Comstock lode from no knowledge of the Metallurgy of gold and silver to the complete Comstock process we took the ores from the mines and cleaned them of their precious metals down to one dollar per ton

Today we can reduce ores for seventy-five cents per ton and guarantee ninety five per cent extraction, from which I conclude that mining in Nevada is as permanent a pursuit as farming in New York or Missouri It is unthinkable tha with our present knowledge and skill in the metallurgy of the precious metals that the time will ever come in Nevada when mining will not be more profitable than farming in the agricultural States

In Nevada we have raised a generation of men who had gold ores and silver ores and Reduction Works, and acid chambers and manufacturing chemistry plants and refineries and hoisting works and power drills for playmates in childhood

They can operate a mine extract the ore and extract the precious metals from the ore and refine and turn it out in elegant bars of Bullion 999 fine So pure that the Government debases it to coin into money

The excellence of our natural resources consists in furnishing the article used not only in our country, but throughout the World in fixing and measuring the value of the products of all other States and Countries

The first overflow into Nevada on discovery of the Comstock lode, was from California

They took it away because as they said Nevada was worthless

Then they came back to carry off the Truckee River as they said they needed the water We of Nevada said not one drop

That Lake Tahoe lay in the water shed of the eastern slope of the Sierra Nevada Mountains in Nevada and there is no precedent in the human family where any Government ever took the waters on one watershed away from its citizens and diverted it to another water shed for the benefit of one citizen at the expense of another and you cant take a drop and they did not and I say to my friend from Inyo that if Inyo had been in Nevada Los Angeles would not take a drop of your water

We had a few miner we could spare from the Comstock and w se them to digging in the desert and they have opened the most remarkable gold mines ever discovered and they have only just begun to dig

This all shows the great variety and excellence of our natural resources also that the great deserts of Nevada are the most valuable part of our public domain

Ladies and Gentlemen in thus presenting the variety and excellence of our natural resources we do not do it because we have anything to sell We have become so accustomed to having our treasures taken away that we invite you to come and take Help yourselves please

EASTERN MARKETS AND WALL STREET

NEW YORK, Sept 6—The stock market today had the further benefit of the action of the Burlington directors yesterday in increasing the dividend rate at 8 per cent and in distributing an extra dividend of 6 per cent to stock holders

The direct benefit to the corporation treasuries of the Northern and Great Northern by reason of their ownership of nearly all of the Burlington stocvk was clearly recognized

There was also a flood of rumors in circulation alleging plans for distribution of these profits to the stockholders of those companies in the form of extra dividends and these rumors were the inciting cause of most of the speculation which showed more animation than for many weeks past The rumors were without a confirmation Payments were being made of a $3 000 000 installment of subscriptions to Great Northern preferred new stock The diversion of funds that has been going on this week from the call loan to the time loan branch of the money market is believed also to have its effect on call loan rates

The uncovered shorts played an important part in the days upward movement The persistent circulation of rumors of further embarrassments was believed to be due to efforts of the bears to secure stocks more easily

Some af the reports thus put in circulation were daring Their effect however was slight Heaviness in London was attributed to preparation for a coming holiday Renewed reports of frost damage to wheat in the northwest failed to check the advancing tendency of stocks The days speculation centered largely in stocks most benefited by Burlington bonus including Union Pacific by reason of holdings of Great Northern preferred and Northern Pacific treasury of that company

Another helpful factor in the speculation was the forecast of a favorable bank statement tomorrow

A recovery in the London price of copper gave som estrength to copper industrials Profit taking made considerable inroads upon the gains and the market closed easy

Bonds were firm Total sales par value $1 12 000

United States bonds were unchanged on call
